FROM THE EDITOR

The snow will be gone soon and Spring won't be far behind. Perceptions has a whole lot planned for the coming months, but it takes a great deal of planning and coordination on the part of many to pull it off. There are a number of ways that you can help make this our most exciting year yet.

If you haven't renewed your membership, now's the time. Keep all the yearly events, weekly dinners and monthly support groups coming. Already paid? Stop by a General Meeting and check out one of our many interesting speakers this year. Watch the newsletter to find out who you missed in February and who's up next. We welcome feedback on who you liked and who you didn't. Contact Leo@PerceptionsSV.org and tell us what you thought. If you are already attending the meetings, we are always looking for new faces to greet at the door or pick up the snacks, for which you will be reimbursed. Sign up sheets are always by the door.

It's not too late to donate your favorite chocolate dish to the Chocolate Party. There's no such thing as too much. Contact Kay@PerceptionsSV.org Every party takes food, supplies and people to work them, if you want to get involved behind the scenes of any function, you can always contact Volunteer@PerceptionsSV.org This year, we hope to bring you another Pride Banquet, Summer Picnic, Garden Party, Wine Tasting—we're even thinking ahead to the next Holiday Party. Find out how you can help.

Part of Perceptions' mission is to project a positive image to the entire community, so help us at the next highway cleanup on April 17th. Contact Rick@PerceptionsSV.org if you're free that day. It's always a fun time. We'll be announcing more cleanup dates as we know them. We're also looking forward to Michigan Pride in Lansing on June 12. If we can get the interest, we'll have a presence there this year. If you'd like to help man a booth, decorate a truck or ride in the parade, contact Brent@PerceptionsSV.org

Finally, we've all got things we'd like to get rid of and here's your chance. Perceptions is already collecting things and storing them for a Rummage Sale in May. If you'd like to donate your unwanted items to the sale, find out how. Write Randy@PerceptionsSV.org

There are many small ways we can all help to make it another great year for Perceptions!

“Everybody's journey is individual. If you fall in love with a boy, you fall in love with a boy. The fact that many Americans consider it a disease says more about them than it does about homosexuality.”

Bernadette Brown of the Triangle Foundation Speaks

Kay Sural

Perceptions hosted Bernadette Brown, Policy Director for the Triangle Foundation on Thursday, February 18th. Bernadette gave a smart, informative and entertaining interactive talk to a large circle of Perceptions members. She shared a history of the Triangle Foundation and explained the new merging of Triangle and Michigan Equality.

On the legislative front, Bernadette explained that even though Triangle is working at the State level to change laws to include protection in housing and employment, small community bills like the one recently passed in Kalamazoo, are a good way to advance LGBT rights. Also a second parent adoptions bill has currently passed committee and this bill is worded "two unmarried persons", with no reference to sex.

On the judicial front, Bernadette reminded us that two State Supreme Court seats will be up for vote this November and stressed the importance of educating yourself on all the candidates.

Questions were asked, ideas were shared and Perceptions was very fortunate to have Bernadette share her knowledge with us. This was a fun and enjoyable meeting. Thank you Bernadette.

Changes Ahead for the Perceptions Transgender Group

As the second anniversary of the Perceptions Saginaw Valley Transgender Group (PSVTG) approaches, we have some changes to announce. Rev. Rebecca Dunn, who started the group, will be turning her attention to focus on ministry. Rebecca will continue to act as a moderator for the PSVTG email list hosted by Yahoo Groups (<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/PSVTG>) and she will attend meetings from time to time. We thank Rebecca for getting the group up and running. This is a resource that was greatly needed in the Saginaw Valley region and Perceptions is proud to make it available to the transgender community.

Jolene, who has worked with Rebecca from the beginning as the group's counselor and facilitator, is getting ready to move to Los Angeles. Jolene's departure makes it necessary to bring in another professional person who would be available for counseling, if needed. Rachel Prenzler will be taking over this role and will also serve as the group's point of contact. You can email her at Rachel@PerceptionsSV.org

Rachel is not a stranger to PSVTG, as she has attended several meetings in the past. Rachel has a Masters in Social Work and is an adult outpatient therapist with the MPA Group in Bay City. She is a huge advocate for the LGBT population and strongly believes in making more resources available to people in the Tri-Cities who are transgender.

Because of Rachel's work schedule, it is necessary to move the meetings to another night. Starting in March, PSVTG will meet on the last Monday of each month. Because The Mixx and Metro Grille are not open on Mondays, we also had to find a new venue. The March 29th meeting will be at the Magic Bean Cafe, 5789 State Street, Saginaw at 6:00 pm. Perceptions and PSVTG members would like to thank Robb Wiersum and the staff at The Mixx for hosting the group for the past two years. The Mixx opened early on the second Wednesday of the month for the group to meet and they also hosted a wonderful dinner last May to celebrate the group's first anniversary.

The group's mission has not changed. PSVTG will continue to offer an informal monthly gathering, taking a more "light-hearted" approach to allow transgenders in the Tri-Cities to connect with one another for socializing and support. Erin Moers and Terri Jackson (Terri@PerceptionsSV.org) will continue their leadership roles within the group.

UPCOMING EVENTS

The SVSU Drag Show has been scheduled for March 19th in the Student Activities Room. The show will benefit the Tri-Cities' 6th Annual AIDS Walk on September 25. The time was not final at time of publication. Please check <http://events.PerceptionsSV.org> for updates or contact Brent@PerceptionsSV.org

American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) & the LGBT Project: Fighting Discrimination for the LGBT Community

Leo Romo

“Equality rights for LGBT people are essential in a democratic society, in which it should be easy to be free and safe to be yourself.”
- American Civil Liberties Union.

The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) of Michigan initiated the LGBT Project in 2000; the ACLU has worked on sexual orientation and gender identity/expression issues in Michigan since 1966. The LGBT Project fights discrimination in the courts and legislature and moves public opinion on LGBT rights through public education. The mission of the LGBT Project is to foster a society in which everyone enjoys the basic rights of equality, privacy, personal autonomy, and freedom of expression and association. The LGBT Project is the only legal program in Michigan that fights for the rights of LGBT people and their families. Note: the ACLU of Michigan has a full-time lobbyist in Lansing who works on pro-LGBT legislation and opposes anti-LGBT policies and legislation.

The LGBT Project addresses issues unique to the LGBT community: marriage equality; domestic partner benefits; estate planning and other legal rights; discrimination in housing, employment, health care, public school, and other services; same-sex parent adoption and custody; HIV/AIDS discrimination and confidentiality; protection against hate crimes and bullying; equality access in public accommodations; and respect for GLBT seniors.

Dustin Lance Black first heard the story of slain civil rights leader Harvey Milk after his family moved to California at age 13. He says it gave him hope that he could one day live his life openly. When he saw the documentary, "The Times of Harvey Milk" during his college days in the 1990's, he longed to do something with the story, in hopes of inspiring the younger generations. After researching the project for 3 years, he wrote a script, which was turned into the 2008 film "Milk," and won an Academy Award for Best Original Screenplay. He has also written and directed "The Journey of Jared Price," a gay romance film, and the short film, "Something Close to Heaven." He is currently a writer and co-producer of "Big Love," an HBO dramatic series. He spoke at the Equality March on October 11, 2009 in Washington D.C.

THIS DOUG'S LIFE

by Doug Solosky

“Articulating My Thoughts” PART II

My partner Don and I were whole within ourselves. Our relationship was such that when either of us was emotionally down the other one would pick him up. We never argued. Don handled the household and I earned the money. We never had gone to a movie, the theater, or a bar. It wasn't until late in our relationship that a friend and antique dealer got us to go on shopping trips for antiques to sell and thus to restaurants. Don came “kicking and screaming,” so to speak. He was very shy.

We had very few friends outside of fellow dealers and some customers. Our families were who we saw the most.

Don's family has history of plaque, a heart condition. He developed heart problems. Several health procedures later he had a base stem stroke. He was 54. The next 6 years were harrowing. Then my world came to an end. On January 12, 2004, I found him dead on the dining room floor.

I was lost. My reason for living was gone.

I ran the shop for about a year after his death. I frantically kept myself busy. One day, a couple of men came into the shop. We had a wonderful conversation. They stayed for at least an hour. When they left, I thought, “Well that was nice,” and went on with my day. That night the younger of the two called and asked if it would be all right for him to come over. It took me completely by surprise. I stammered, “How about tomorrow?” He came, we had a good time and he left. I kept looking out of the upstairs bathroom window for the next couple of weeks hoping he'd return. He didn't.

That was about 6 months after Dons death.

I decided that I had to do something or I would surely go stark raving mad! I looked in every telephone book I had. (When you're in business, you get them by the pound.) The last book, Saginaw, had a phone number for gays and lesbians. I called. “All calls will be answered within 24 hours.” I waited. Twenty-three and ½ hours later the phone rang. “How'd you get the number?” asked a man named Charles in a gruff voice.” I said, “Out of the Saginaw phone book.” I told him, “I'm gay and want to come out.” He told me there was a meeting at the Unitarian Universalist Church in Midland the next day. (I found out later that Charles' gruffness was predicated on protecting Perceptions against those who would want to harm us.)

I was filled with mixed emotions. On one hand, I was relieved that maybe I had found an avenue of hope. On the other, I was scared to death. What was I letting myself in for? I had lived a life of relative love and protection and now I was going to face a ‘new world,’ a world that I had only heard about.

That evening, I went to the meeting. I was so scared that my hands were visibly shaking. “Ah! I don't want to do this!” “You are going to do it!” I took a deep breath, nervous and physically shaking, I reluctantly went in. The room was filled with people. I walked up to the table and was greeted by a friendly man. He handed me a stick-on label on which to write my name. I did. I was so nervous that I could not peel it apart. I handed it to one of them and said, “Here, you peel this damned thing off.”

“Where's Charles?” (The only person I knew by name.) “Oh, he's around here somewhere. There he is, now.” In comes this tall blonde with an enormous cardboard box. It had almost nothing in it. My first thought was, “Why didn't he just use a sack?”

My stomach was churning. I introduced myself, reminding him that we had spoken on the phone. He gave me the warmest hug. It wasn't until then that I realized how much I missed human contact.

I was out of it. Socially inept, my first words were, “I don't like your glasses and I don't like your goatee.” He said, “I do!” and that was that.

I thought, “Oh shit! I screwed up that one.” R.G. was standing beside me. I asked what happens now? He told me and I turned and left. Out of the corner of my eye, I could see that my abruptness had hurt his feelings. “Well, you did it again,” I thought.

The meeting turned out to be about exercising. I hate to exercise! “You are going to exercise! You wanted to come out, so do it!”

At the end of the session, we were asked to turn to a friend and let them know a year later how we were doing. I knew no one. I went up to Charles, “You are the only one I know. What's your last name and address?”

Thus began a lasting friendship. Charles has easily become one of my best friends, helping me in more ways than I can count.

This was also my introduction to Perceptions, an organization of great worth and value.

I was in my early 70's when I started my "new life." I didn't have a clue as to what to do. I started attending general meetings, going to our Friday night meals, and to social events. Ever so gradually becoming more relaxed and comfortable with myself. It has taken over 3 years and much psychological pushing on my part. I had to get over the fear of new situations, learning who and who not to trust.

The 'trek' has been good for me. I am able to go into new situations without fear, consider moving into a different home even to a different state. I've even gained some social graces. I now try to think before I speak. Life is good. I have almost always seen the glass half full and not half empty.

But, there has been the occasional down side. I have suffered minor depression. When I realized it, I concluded that depression is only a state of mind so "Stop it!" I focused on the good things I have, on the future - in short, I offset my mind with a purpose and forethought, thoughts of Don, my new life and other pleasant things.

Life is too short to wallow in self-pity. Live it! As Roselyn Russell said in Auntie Mame, "Life is a banquet and most poor suckers are starving."

Now, as a gay senior I find myself in a unique position. I am old with a youthful attitude, still looking for that someone special knowing if it doesn't happen, that's life, not caring if someone knows I'm gay, giving my knowledge and experiences in life freely, contributing where I feel I'm able to furthering our cause, looking forward to the future positively.

Don was my world; now I have a new one.

Sacred Heart Rehabilitation Center-BASIS Relocates to New Bay City Facility; Saginaw Office Expands

Sacred Heart Rehabilitation Center-BASIS is reaffirming its commitment to providing substance use disorder treatment and HIV/AIDS prevention and care services to residents in the Great Lakes Bay Region with the relocation of its Bay City office and the expansion of its AIDS care program in Downtown Saginaw. Sacred Heart-BASIS will relocate to a newly-remodeled facility at 1106 Washington Avenue and move its Saginaw offices into a larger suite in the Commerce Center at 301 East Genesee effective Monday, March 1st.

"Sacred Heart Rehabilitation Center-BASIS has a rich, 40+ - year history of providing substance abuse treatment services in the Great Lakes Bay Region," said Grady Wilkinson, president and CEO of Sacred Heart Rehabilitation Center.

"Relocating our Bay City office is a reflection of our continued commitment to the region," Wilkinson said. "This new facility is more attractive, functional and convenient for our clients."

Sacred Heart Rehabilitation Center's Saginaw office will relocate to a larger suite on the 2nd floor of the Commerce Center at 301 East Genesee in Saginaw. "This expansion allows our staff to more efficiently serve our Saginaw clients in our HIV/AIDS Care program," Wilkinson said. This location is very convenient for our clients as it is located near local hospitals, health clinics, and the Department of Human Services, and offers easy access to public transportation," Wilkinson added.

"The motivation for our relocation and expansion is to provide the best possible service to our clients, as well as position ourselves for future growth in our services to the region," Wilkinson said.
